ESM musicians perform at French Rd.

A string quartet from the Eastman School of Music used Brighton classrooms as their classrooms as they performed for French Road Elementary School students early in January.

The musicians take part in a program called "Music for All," which teaches students how to communicate with their audiences. National Public Radio critic Robert Cappelo was present to evaluate the students. The visit was arranged by French Road parents Pamela Frame, a cellist, and Andrew Green of the Eastman School of Music concert office.
